Chennai, Oct. 12:

Healthcare supply chain course

The Sankara Nethralaya Academy is accepting applications for a weekend course on supply chain management in healthcare. Having tied up with the Confederation of Indian Industry (CII) Institute of Logistics for this course, the academy aims to educate healthcare professionals about the importance of managing supplies for the efficient functioning of a healthcare organisation.

The lectures will include supply chain framework, forecasting demand, classifying healthcare goods, order placement, warehousing, forward and reverse logistics and disposal methods.

The 12-weekend, classroom course, starting on October 19, will enroll doctors, material managers and patient service executives and does not have an age bar. The course fee is Rs 10,000.
